TRAINING

CPP30607 - Certificate III in Investigative Services

Use your investigation experience for a career in private investigation. This CLET qualification is suitable for licensing in all Australian States and Territories except Victoria and Western Australia.

Are you current or former police? Are you current or former military police? Have you been in an investigations role with Government? Have you undertaken investigations as part of your employment in the private sector?

If so, then apply now for Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) with CLET. The CLET RPL Team has extensive experience in investigations and is well equipped to recognise your experience and translate it to a nationally recognised qualification. The CLET CPP30607 Certificate III in Investigative Services is the qualification required for private investigation licensing in all States and Territories except Victoria and Western Australia.

Typically investigations are confidential and therefore evidencing your experience in this area can seem challenging. The CLET RPL Team understands this and makes the process easy for anyone who has experience in this area. Go ahead and apply for RPL for this nationally recognised qualification and CLET will help you through all the requirements.

What about Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL)?

Recognition of prior learning is available on this qualification.

After reading the information provided on this qualification page, if you then decide to apply to have your knowledge and skills recognised towards this and/or other qualifications, you may click on the RPL Assessment button and complete the application form to commence the process.

Click on the following headings to learn more about the CLET recognition of prior learning (RPL) process.

Who is eligible to apply for RPL?

CLET specialises in providing recognition of prior learning (RPL) to people who are current or former police, military, emergency services, nursing and all other government at all levels. WHY? Because that is where our workplace knowledge, experience and education is focused and current.

RPL assessment is obligation free

The RPL assessment process is 'free of charge' and 'obligation free'. You only pay the RPL fee if you wish to be awarded with your qualification/s and receive the certificate/s after the assessment process is complete and you are advised of the result. We do this in recognition of the impeccable work you have done for our community.

When RPL form is submitted

After you complete the RPL Assessment form, evidence to support your knowledge and skills is required. When this is received, CLET staff will commence the initial review of your experience against the criteria of one or more qualifications. On the application form you may elect the qualification/s you wish to be assessed against or ask for a general assessment.

1. The more evidence you provide that is relevant against the qualification/s criteria you wish to be assessed against, the easier it is for CLET staff to be confident you possess the knowledge and skills required.
2. If required, a competency conversation may be conducted over the phone
