TRAINING

CHC50513 - Diploma of Youth Justice

Experience in policing is an excellent basis for RPL in this qualification

The CHC50513 Diploma of Youth Justice is a specialist qualification that meets the needs of those hoping to work with youth in a criminal justice environment. Faced with many intricacies, this qualification is an excellent reflection of the work police do and therefore is available for RPL for all current and former police with experience in general policing as well as specialist groups.

If you have policing experience, or any other relevant experience in community services that works with youth, you may be eligible for this qualification based on that experience and prior learning.

Apply for RPL with CLET today to see if you are eligible for this qualification.

What about Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL)?

Recognition of prior learning is available on this qualification.

After reading the information provided on this qualification page, if you then decide to apply to have your knowledge and skills recognised towards this and/or other qualifications, you may click on the RPL Assessment button and complete the application form to commence the process.

Click on the following headings to learn more about the CLET recognition of prior learning (RPL) process.

Who is eligible to apply for RPL?

CLET specialises in providing recognition of prior learning (RPL) to people who are current or former police, military, emergency services, nursing and all other government at all levels. WHY? Because that is where our workplace knowledge, experience and education is focused and current.

RPL assessment is obligation free

The RPL assessment process is 'free of charge' and 'obligation free'. You only pay the RPL fee if you wish to be awarded with your qualification/s and receive the certificate/s after the assessment process is complete and you are advised of the result. We do this in recognition of the impeccable work you have done for our community.

When RPL form is submitted

After you complete the RPL Assessment form, evidence to support your knowledge and skills is required. When this is received, CLET staff will commence the initial review of your experience against the criteria of one or more qualifications. On the application form you may elect the qualification/s you wish to be assessed against or ask for a general assessment.

1. The more evidence you provide that is relevant against the qualification/s criteria you wish to be assessed against, the easier it is for CLET staff to be confident you possess the knowledge and skills required.
2. If required, a competency conversation may be conducted over the phone
